APPLE BLOOM TIME IN NORMANDY

Etretat in spring is one of the loveliest sights imaginable. The beauty of Japan in the cherry blossom season cannot surely surpass the Normandy landscape white with apple bloom. The Grand Val d'Etretat and the surrounding country seem as though covered with snow at this time of the year; and no better view of it can be gotten than from the golf links on the cliffs, close to the famous Porte d'Aval.

Etretat is so easily reached nowadays that it is becoming almost an "all the year round" resort. In this respect, it has greatly changed since Alphonse Karr discovered, and Offenbach, Le Poittevin, Isabey and Maupassant adopted it. In their days it was a formidable undertaking to reach Etretat. When Guy de Maupassant came about forty years ago to his villa, "La Guillette," he and his servant were met at the Ifs station by "a coupe and pair." "In this part of the world," said Maupassant, "the horses are all broken kneed, owing to the hilly roads, and perhaps to careless driving." In going downhill, the visitors had to brace themselves against the front of the crazy old rattletrap in order to remain in it. But today, a branch line links Etretat to the main railway between Paris and Havre.

Coach

A LL Auburn greeted with joy the news that Coach Chet Wynne has Wynne decided to remain here for another three years. Coach Wynne has become an integral part of the institution during the three years he has been here, and he has a host of friends here and in many other points throughout the South.

Too much cannot be said in praise of Wynne's work; he has shown his ability to train football teams as well as men. He has made himself respected wherever he goes by his quiet reticence and gentlemanly bearing. Auburn is indeed fortunate in being able to keep Wynne; the worth of the institution is greatly enhanced by men such as he.

Dr. Brown Assumes
Other College Duties

AFTER six years of faithful, efficient, untiring, and enthusiastic alumni work Dr. J. V. Brown has retired because other duties assigned recently to him require all of his time. He has been placed in charge of buildings, grounds, cafeteria, dormitories, and other things at Auburn. With these duties he does not have time for alumni work. He will continue, however, his student placment work at Auburn.

When Dr. Brown began his alumni work he found only a few rather inactive alumni chapters. Now there are 67 active chapters, of which 60 are in Alabama and seven in other states. Through these units Auburn alumni have been brought close to their Alma Mater.

A highly creditable alumni office has been established with records and files for keeping in contact with alumni. Much assistance has been given to alumni in finding work, and in keeping in contact with each other. The office is a service unit and contact unit for alumni.

Dr. Brown has spent much time helping students on the campus to find work, or doing other things in order to stay in college. He has also collected alumni loan funds; and done countless other things for Auburn and her people.

Dr. Brown is a "wheel horse" and a "war horse" among Auburn alumni. He graduated in 1894 and received his M.S. the next year. In 1925 Howard Payne College conferred upon him the LL.D. degree.

It is no secret that football brought Mr. Brown to Auburn. He was at Mercer as a student when he went to Atlanta to see Auburn and Georgia play in 1892. He decided on the spot that he wanted to go to Auburn, which he did that fall.

As an Auburn Tiger he played tackle and guard, being captain his last year. And every man who played against him admitted freely that he played against a real man when he played against J. V. ("Widdy") Brown.

Alumni work will be handled temporarily by the Department of Public Information.—By P.

O. Davis.

Good Advice from Dean J. J. Wilmore CULTIVATE thrift; avoid debts," was one of the parting admonitions given mid-year graduates by Dean

Jno. J. Wilmore, administrative committee chairman, after he had presented them Auburn degrees at the exercises in the Presbyterian Church.

"There is nothing that causes more unhappiness and discouragement than debt," he said. "I believe debt is one of the fundamental causes for the depression which now prevails.

"... When you buy an article on the installment plan the cost is about 10 per cent higher than list price. In most cases the same article could have been bought for cash on delivery with a discount of two per cent. That means you are paying a tax of 12 per cent on what you buy. You would be greatly hurt and discouraged if your employer should cut your salary that much and yet that is practically what you do to your own salary when you go in debt.

"Of course, occasions arise when it becomes necessary to incur debts, and credit must be available to carry modern business. It is also necessary for the individual citizen in times like these but I am sure we would all be more comfortable if we had not been compelled to use it. The cash basis is more important than the gold basis and credit is one of those things which grows rapidly weaker with over-exercise. I often wonder if a depression could have been brought about if no one was in debt to another."

The estimated debt in the United States of 218 billion dollars results in an average of $70 in interest per individual, or from eight to ten billion dollars, that must be paid annually. And since 90 per cent of our wealth is in the hands of perhaps less than 10 per cent of the people, many more individuals are paying rather than receiving interest, Dean Wilmore pointed out.

"There is an overwhelming need for men and women with trained minds who can think straight. Do not forget that you must think straight. Many, many minds which have been highly trained cannot think straight. Prejudice, personal interest, sometimes friendship and many other influences may deflect our thinking. We must train ourselves to properly evaluate all these influences and not let them unbalance our judgments and our decisions."

Shall Auburn Continue to Serve?

UBURN alumni, regardless of of their ages, do not recall a condition like unto that which now exists. Nothing like it has ever before occurred. It is heart-rending and distressing.

A great institution, built over a period of 61 years by men and women of the highest character and the greatest loyalty, is on the brink of collapse.

It was for October, 1931, that the faculty received their last pay check for an entire month. Since then they have received four fractions in checks, some in certificates of indebtedness, and more in nothing—not even a promise or an I. O. U.

Auburn merchants—after struggling for two years with a financial load which has grown from month to month, week to week, and day to day—have strained their finances to the breaking point and now say that they soon must go on a cash basis in order to keep their doors open.

When this is done many members of the Auburn faculty will be without bread or the wherewith to get it. Their meager savings have been exhausted. Their credit has been destroyed by the failure of the college to pay their salaries and the inability of the college to give any assurance as to when salaries will be paid, if ever.

Auburn is a little town and there are no big merchants here, but one groceryman is now holding $12,000 worth of certificates of indebtedness and $13,000 in open accounts in addition to disposing of all the certificates of indebtedness he could with his endorsement thereon. Another has $21,500 and others have less amounts.

But the professors have taught faithfully, cheerfully, and efficiently. They have been disappointed and inconvenienced but they have accepted their sacrifices along with the general public, being aware of economic conditions everywhere.

In view of the fact that Auburn salaries have always been low, savings by professors have been meager. Hence, the distress which now exists By P. O. DAVIS, '16 and promises to get worse for no relief is in sight!

When the Alabama legislature last convened in regular session the business men of Auburn—and all connected with the Alabama Polytechnic Institute—believed that reasonable relief would be provided but all were disappointed.

Then they looked hopefully to the first special session of the legislature. All were disappointed again.

Having experienced these two disappointments they felt sure that the second special session which is now in progress would bring relief; but, to date, this has not been done.

And so the present situation is one of grief and distress. It, perhaps, is the most pathetic ever witnessed in a college town. Yet, in the face of it, professors and students are doing their best to "carry on" successfully this year.

They are not expecting anything big. All they want is a chance to live and an opportunity to work. They are fully aware of business condi-

WRITE A LETTER ANNUALLY TO THE ALUMNI OFFICE

If every alumnus would take just a few minutes cmc2 a year to write the Alumni Office a summary of his activities during the past twelve months, what a volume of interesting material could be printed in your magazine!

Many alumni have been most cooperative in filling cut the information blanks mailed to them from time to time. This information not only makes our files invaluable but it gives opportunity for your Auburn friends to read about your activities when the material is published.

If you haven't been in touch recently with the Alumni Office, suppose you drop us a note right now.

Tell us where you are, what you are doing, when you were married, if so, and how many children (if any) and their ages. Your classmates will be interested to find facts about you in the Alumnus.

It is an easy thing to keep in touch with Auburn. Why not do it? Write us at least once a year. Address Auburn Alumni Association, Auburn, Alabama.

tions and in full sympathy with all in distress.

But this question must be answered: Shall the Alabama Polytechnic Institute—an educational institution of high ideals, glorious traditions, and noble purposes—continue to operate? Since the beginning of the fiscal year on October 1, 1932, we have received less than 25 per cent of the State funds due us after our appropriations were reduced 30 per cent by the 1932 special session of the legislature.

A considerable amount of the money received had to go into such fixed charges as interest, electricity, gas, water, coal, and labor, leaving a small amount for the faculty salaries. The Board of Trustees ruled that money received be handled this way.

Alumni are being informed so that they may take whatever action they wish to take. Their cooperation is sorely needed.

MORE THAN HALF ALABAMA SCHOOLS FORCED TO CLOSE

More than half the white schools of the State were closed on March 13, affecting 51.98 per cent of the white enrollment in 35 counties, according to an announcement by Dr. A. F. Harman, State superintendent of education. By March 31, 81.58 per cent of the schools will be closed, it was announced.

In a statement issued with the facts as compiled by Dr. Dale S. Young, director of research and information of the State Department, Dr. Harman declared that "unless something shall be done in the way of providing additional revenue, the entire educational structure, already virtually collapsed for the current year, will be thrown back to the condition that obtained in the state 30 years ago, recovery from which condition might not be accomplished for a generation.

"Meantime," he added, "thousands of our children would be deprived of their educational birthright. . . .

"The public terms in many places have been cut in half and the schools, if carrying on at all, are doing so as private or subscription schools."

Dr. Sanford and Bishop McDowell Will Speak at 61st Commencement

PLANS for the 61st annual commencement exercises at the Alabama Polytechnic Institute are being made by the Administrative Committee which is composed of Dean J. J. Wilmore, Professor B. H. Crenshaw, Dr. L. N. Duncan, and the Executive Council.

Dean Wilmore, chairman, announced that Bishop William G. McDowell, of the Alabama Diocese, Episcopal Church, will preach the commencement sermon in Langdon Hall, Sunday, May 14, and that the baccalaureate address to the graduating students and their friends will be delivered in the same place Tuesday, May 16, by Dr. S. V. Sanford, president of the University of Georgia. The alumni orator has not been named but this and other matters in connection with commencement plans will be completed at an early date.

Bishop McDowell is well known and very popular in Auburn where he was rector of the Episcopal Church from 1919 to 1922. He was serving the Auburn church when he was elected bishop coadjutor of the Alabama Diocese in 1922, the election having taken place at Carlowville in Dallas County.

Bishop McDowell is a Virginian. He was educated at Washington and Lee, at the Virginia Theological Seminary, and at Sewanee. He holds degrees from each of these institutions, from the last two of which he has the degree of doctor of divinity. From 1913 to 1918 he was rector of the Emmanuel Church at Staunton, Virginia. From 1918 until he came to Auburn he was chaplain in U.S. Army.

Dr. Sanford is widely known as one of the South's leading educators. A Georgian by birth, he graduated at Mercer University in 1890. Since graduation from Mercer he has attended other universities, among them being the University of Berlin and Oxford University. He holds the degree of Litt.D., from the University of Georgia.

From 1890 to 1892 he was the principal of the Marietta (Ga.) Male Academy; for the next five years he was principal of the Marietta High School, then superintendent of Marietta schools until 1903 when he became a member of the faculty of the University of Georgia where he has remained continuously.

Dr. Sanford for many years has been conspicuous in athletics. He was elected president of the Southern Conference when it was organized in 1921 and held this position many years. He became president of the University of Georgia in 1932.

During the Spanish-American War Dr. Sanford was captain of a company of volunteers.

Spring Football Practice

WHILE Auburn's 1933 Spring football training could not be pronounced the best ever held at the Plains, results obtained in the Spring drills prove that Coach Chet Wynne's Tigers will have to be reckoned with next season before the Southeastern Conference gonfalon is awarded. Severe weather and a large number of injuries handicapped Skipper Wynne in conditioning his grid warriors for the 1933 campaign.

The Plainsmen were given weeks of Spring training, Wynne not carrying out his original plans to extend Spring training to seven or eight weeks because he did not want to interfere with freshman and varsity track and baseball.

A practice contest between picked teams, the Blues and Oranges, brought the Spring maneuvers to a close. In the final skirmish, Captain Ripper Williams piloted his Blue standard-bearers to a 15-7 win over Alternate-Captain Boots Chambless' Orange aggregation. Proceeds from this game were used to buy gold footballs for five coaches, 26 lettermen of the 1932 undefeated squad, Manager Ed Holloday and Cheerleader Bill Ham.

Although such able performers as All-American and all Southern Jimmie Hitchcock, halfback; Ike Parker, quarterback; Tom Brown, fullback; Porter Grant and Shot Senn, ends; Hannis Prim, tackle; Donald Jones and Commodore Wood, guards, and Lee Johnson, center, will be missing next season, Coach Wynne will be able to put a strong eleven on the field his fourth year at Alabama Polytechnic Institute.

"A" wearers from last season's undefeated squad who will return as a nucleus for the 1933 outfit include Gump Ariail, all-Southern end, and Bennie Fenton and Jack Kemp, ends; Bat McCollum, Tiny Holmes and Haygood Paterson, tackles; Alternate-Captain Chambless, Mike Welch and Bing Miller, guards; Barney Musgrove and Will Chrietzberg, centers; Captain Williams, the Tuscumbia wizard, quarterback; Firpo Phipps, the Mobile dreadnaught; Allen Rogers, the Greenville speedster. and Casey Kimbrell, the Thomasville phantom, halfbacks, and Sterling Dupree, the Sylvester streak, and the reliable Truck Talley, fullbacks. Miller, however, is a newcomer to the guard ranks, as he is a two-year letter wearer at tackle.

Reserves from last year returning are Mussolini Levi and Norman Houston, guards; Dan Lawson, tackle; Red Head and Cleve Brown, quarterbacks, and Buren Henderson, Papa Morris and Pecan Wright, halfbacks.

Very little succor is expected next year from graduates of the frosh squad. Several of the Cubs, however, looked promising in Spring training and should bolster the team before graduating. They include Monk Hill, Mugs Scruggs and Little Buck Priester, ends; Welch Huckaby, Ralph Tolve and Harold McFaden, tackles; Red Watson and Collins Fenton, guards; Fred Black and Gilbert Mc-Millan, centers; Duke Paterson and Harry Hooper, quarterbacks, and Irish O'Rourke and Judson Dowling, halfbacks. O'Rourke, a stocky-built Irishman from Bessemer, is a triplethreat who should see plenty of action as a sophomore. He has plenty of drive, can pass and tackle, and is capable of reeling off plenty of yard-

IN MEMORIAM

JOSEPH Q. BURTON, '96

Mr. Joseph Q. Burton, 56, widely known socially and in business in Atlanta, died March 5 at the Victoria Hotel in Palma on the island of Majorca, in the Balearic Islands—Spanish possessions.

Mr. Burton, who resided at 3907 Brookhaven Drive, Atlanta, Ga., and who was owner of the McCandless Laboratories there, contracted pneumonia, and died within a few days.

With Mrs. Burton, who was the former Miss Mary Bancker, of Atlanta, and Colonel and Mrs. Trout, of Charleston, S. C., Mr. Burton sailed from New York January 10, on the cruise to Palma. They had been in Palma for about a month.

Mrs. Burton has booked passage on the Exeter, of the American Export Line, to sail from Palma, Friday, and is scheduled to arrive in New York March 22. The body will be brought to Atlanta and funeral arrangements will be announced later.

Mr. Burton, who was of a well known Opelika, Alabama, family, came to reside here about twenty-five years ago. With Dr. John McCandless he operated the McCandless Laboratories until Dr. McCandless, on retiring, left Atlanta about two years ago for Los Angeles. Since that time he has been sole owner of the business.

A good golfer and popular among club members, Mr. Burton was a member of the Druid Hills Golf Club and of the Capital City Club. He was also a member of All Saints Church.

Mr. Burton graduated from Auburn in 1896, receiving the M.S. degree the following year. He was a member of Auburn's first male quartet, the late Walter Riggs, Jule Oglesby and Warren McBride being the other members.

Besides his wife he is survived by his parents, Captain and Mrs. J. Q. Burton, of Abbottsford, Ga.; sisters: Mrs. Joe H. Jeter, and Mrs. Gaines Edmondson, of Abbotsford, Ga.; brothers: Massey and John, of Marianna, Fla. Mrs. Joe Burton is the sister of A. Hugh and E. A. Bancker, of Atlanta.

L. W. WILKINSON, '86

Prof. Levi Washington Wilkinson, 73, B.S. '86; M.S. '88, noted agricultural chemist associated the last 12 years with Louisiana State University agricultural extension service, died recently following a lengthy illness.

Born in Clopton, Ala., Prof. Wilkinson began his teaching career as chemistry instructor at Alabama Polytechnic Institute. He resigned from that post in 1891, studied at the University of Berlin and Heidelberg, became professor of chemistry at the Audubon Sugar School of Louisiana State University and later professor of chemistry at Tulane.

He resigned from the Tulane faculty in 1913 to devote himself to agricultural chemistry with the L. S. U. extension service.

Prof. Wilkinson is survived by his widow, who was Miss Effic Biccom Gregory; a daughter, Mrs. E. B. Green, of Bernice, La., and two sons, Frederick Gregory Wilkinson and Edwin R. Wilkinson.

HOWARD PAYSON MEIGS, '31

Howard Payson Meigs, '31, was drowned near Fort Worth, Texas, January 15. A boat in which he and four other young men, riding on an artificial lake near that city, was capsized during a strong wind, and as a result he and one of his companions met death. Mr. Meigs was the son of Mr. and Mrs. F. E. Meigs, of Alexander City, to which place his body was brought for interment. He had gone to Fort Worth to accept a position with the Sinclair Refining Company and had been there about two weeks.

DR. W. E. SISTRUNK

Dr. Walter Ellis Sistrunk, internationally noted surgeon of Dallas, Texas, who died March 6 in his hotel room in New Orleans, while enroute to the Southeastern Surgical Congress in Atlanta, was a student at Auburn back in 1900, taking pharmacy. He was from Elmore County

Dr. Sistrunk graduated in medicine from Tulane University in 1906 and practiced surgery in New Orleans a number of years before joining the staff of Mayo Clinic in Rochester, Minn. There he served for 15 years before locating at Dalles

He was traveling alone to Atlanta where he was to read a paper. A coroner's report, issued after an autopsy, attributed his death to poisoning.

CHARNEL S. JONES, JR. (ex-'35)

Charnel S. Jones, Jr., of Gadsden, died December 8, following a short illness. He underwent an operation ten days before, and several days later suffered another one, complications developing between times. He was 19 years old.

He was born and reared in Gadsden, being the son of Mr. and Mrs. C. S. Jones. He entered Auburn last year and enrolled in the pre-dental course. He was affiliated with the Kappa Sigma fraternity.

a meeting of vocational agriculture students in Nashville and the work of Mr. Clements and the vocational agriculture schools of Tennessee were featured prominently in the Nashville Banner.

How Mr. Clements came to be the first teacher of vocational agriculture was explained as follows: "The National Vocational Act passed by Congress on February 23, 1917, was signed by President Wilson and became effective immediately. At that time Mr. Albert Williams was high school inspector of Tennessee and came to Paris (Tenn.) a few days after the law was passed. He held a conference with the County Board of Education which resulted in the establishment of the department of vocational agriculture in Grove School, March 1, 1917. This was the first department to be established in the State and, we believe, the first in the United States. D. M. Clements was the teacher."

William A. Harman is now mechanical superintendent of the Philadelphia plant of National Biscuit Company. He was a student here in electrical engineering and made an excellent record as a student and athlete. He played tackle on the football team.

He visited Auburn recently and met friends on the faculty and townspeople whom he knew while a student here.

were victims of a maniac assassin attempting to kill President-elect Roosevelt. Dr. Robert Samuel Mosley, Auburn, '28, was there on the job. When blood was needed for the fallen Mayor young Mosley volunteered and gave it.

"Sam" Mosley is well known in Auburn where he finished the premed course. Records show that his grades averaged well up into the 80's with several subjects being 90 or above. He was captain in military, general secretary of the Y. M. C. A., in the band, an active member and an official of a literary society, a Sunday school worker, etc.

Dr. Mosley went from Auburn to Emory University. He is an intern at the Miami hospital to which Mayor Cermak was carried for treatment.

He is a son of Mr. and Mrs. F. M. Mosley of Montgomery.

DEATH OF MRS. HANSON

Mrs. Hanson, wife of Dr. Victor Hanson, publisher of the Birmingham News and Age-Herald and member of the Auburn board of trustees, died at her home in Birmingham on January 17.

Immediately after news of her death reached Auburn Dean Jno. J. Wilmore, Professor B. H. Crenshaw, and Director L. N. Duncan, of the Administrative Committee, dispatched a telegram of condolence.

Mrs. Hanson had been ill a few weeks. Her illness kept Dr. Hanson away for the meeting of the board of trustees in Montgomery on January 12.

A large floral offering was sent by the Auburn faculty.

TRUSTEES ADOPT BUDGET

The Board of Trustees at a meeting in the office of Governor Miller, on January 12, took an important step toward bringing state expenses within income by adopting a budget for Auburn which reduces annual operating expenses at the rate of $247,199.55 per annum.

The budget was proposed by a special committee of the board of trustees created at a meeting last June and composed of T. D. Samford, Opelika; Paul Haley, Oakman; and C. S. Culver, Gadsden. It was presented by the Administrative Committee composed of Dr. J. J. Wilmore, Dr. B. H. Crenshaw, and Dr. L. N. Dungan

A New Deal

A "new deal" is taking place in our governmental re-organization, the effects of which will permeate our entire economic structure.

Why not let the "new deal idea" direct a safer and saner protective policy for you and your family? If you are not adequately insured, a feeling of apprehension about the financial future of your dependents is constantly annoying you.

If you have no insurance at all, don't wait longer to attend to this important matter. If your insurance is not adequate (and you know whether it is or not), purchase at once the necessary amount to remove this useless source of worry.

Auburn's Scholarship Insurance Plan provides the best of protection at no greater cost. Besides, a liberal portion of the premiums you pay goes to the Alumni Scholarship Fund, proceeds of which assist many worthy students in obtaining a college education.
